The gift of God?

Editorial by J. Doe

... or something else?

Christian 'authority' figures urge believers to practice sorcery in worship of the idol 'Science.'

As the COVID vaccines have been pushed on the masses, many considered to be Christian leaders have presented these experimental trespasses on the body's integrity as a miracle of modern medicine -- a blessing from God, and a way to show you love your neighbor!

For example, Franklin Graham, president of Samaritan's Purse and the Billy Graham Evangelistic Association, considered an evangelical leader by many, said his father, the late evangelist Billy Graham, took vaccines and was an advocate of them. He declared: "I think if there were vaccines available in the time of Christ, Jesus would have made reference to them and used them."¹

Jesus is often called the great physician: the gospels resound with Jesus' healing of multitudes of sick people. In Matthew 4:23,² we read that Jesus went about "healing all kinds of sickness and all kinds of disease among the people." His fame spread so much that people afflicted with all sorts of diseases were brought to him.

Jesus demonstrated by his healing of all diseases that he is God. When a man who was paralyzed was lowered on his bed by his friends from the housetop to be dropped into the midst of a crowd before Jesus, Jesus said unto the man, "Man, thy sins are forgiven thee." For this, the scribes and Pharisees accused Jesus of blasphemy, because only God can forgive sins. But Jesus proceeded to show that he is God by demonstrating his power over the created world: he healed the man, who immediately stood up and took his bed, and walked home (Luke 5:17-26). In Matthew 14:34-36, it is reported that if those who were sick only touched the hem of Jesus' garment, they became well.

Jesus did not just heal the sick himself, he empowered his disciples to heal: "And when He had called His twelve disciples to Him, He gave them power over unclean spirits, to cast them out, and to heal all kinds of sickness and all kinds of disease." (Matthew 10:1) He commanded them to "[h]eal the sick, cleanse the lepers, raise the dead ..." (Id., 10:8). In Acts, it is recorded that sick people were healed by Peter and the disciples after Jesus' resurrection and ascension.

Blasphemy against the Christ

Since Jesus is God, and the One who healed and heals others, it is clear that to claim he would have recommended vaccines and even used them himself, as Graham does, is blasphemy. It is a profound insult to claim that the God-Man who created Man would introduce a disease vector concocted by sinful men into his own sacred body and blood, or would advise his people, who are to be holy and set apart from the world, to do so. The Apostle Peter described Christians as "a chosen generation, a royal priesthood, an holy nation," (I Peter 2:9), and the Apostle Paul reminded that priesthood of believers that they should "come out from among them [i.e., the world of idol worship] and be ye separate .. and touch not the unclean thing." II Corinthians 6:17.

What is an unclean thing to a Christian? In the context of the verse just cited, it refers to anything tainted by sin, idolatry, or demons. More specifically, in the first century A.D., the apostles made a clear statement of what things are always unclean to believers. At that time, Jewish Pharisees who had become Christians insisted that circumcision and the law as practiced by Moses and the Israelites was an essential part of salvation through Jesus Christ. The apostles considered this controversy, and under the direction of the Holy Spirit, rejected the claim that these were necessary to salvation. Instead, they sent a clear message to all believers that they should “abstain from meats offered to idols, and from blood, and from things strangled, and from fornication: from which if ye keep yourselves, ye shall do well.” Acts 15:29. It is appropriate then, since COVID jabs (and vaccines in general) are consumed by being directly injected into the body, whether such jabs have any connection with uncleanness. That is, do they involve idolatry or the consumption of blood?

Further, in Revelation 21:8, the apostle John prophesied that “sorcerers, and idolaters, and all liars” will have their part in the lake which burneth with fire (a.k.a. hell). ‘Babylon’ (representing the world system from which Christians are to come out) is said to have deceived all the nations by its “sorceries.” Revelation 18:23. It is then incumbent upon us to inquire whether COVID-19 jabs are ordinary medical intervention, or are they a type of sorcery?

From the lands of idols?

Inoculation against smallpox, a.k.a. variolation, was prevalent in China, India, West Asia, and Africa before it was practiced in Western countries. Variolation takes material from the scabs or pustules from a person who has smallpox and transfers them to an incision made in the healthy person. This is said to give the healthy person a mild form of the pox, and when they recover, they are said to be immune from future disease.

Variolation appears to have begun in India: arising in Hindu mythology from medieval times (5th through 15th century A.D.), the goddess Shitala Devi (or Shitala Mata), the “cool one,” is both the bringer of the pox, and the healer of the pox. Since at least the 9th century A.D. – but some claim it was much earlier, perhaps as long ago as 1500 B.C. – a Brahmin sect administered the “Tikah,” an inoculation which involved making small incisions in a healthy person with a sharp iron needle, inserting into the wound pus or scabs. The Brahmins were said to have been careful only to use weak material from inoculation pustules from the previous year, avoiding material from anyone who had contracted smallpox naturally.

Lady Mary Wortley Montagu is credited with introducing variolation into England in the early 1700s from the Ottoman Empire; Cotton Mather, the Puritan minister, introduced variolation into America in the early 1700s after learning of the practice from his African-born slave Onesimus.

Cutting the body and incorporating contamination

Variolation involves cutting oneself; then taking a product of disease into the blood through the cut.

The first step, deliberate cutting into human flesh, is forbidden in the Bible when it is done for particular reasons. “Ye shall not make any cuttings in your flesh for the dead, nor print any marks upon you.” Leviticus 19:28. Priests were not to cut their body as worship. Leviticus 21:5-6. Cutting oneself to offer one’s blood was believed by many ancient pagans to be a potent offering to their deities. For example, the priests of Baal, at Mt. Carmel, slashed themselves to gain the attention of their false god. I Kings 18:24-29. In ancient Syria, the priests of Atargatis in Hierapolis cut themselves during worship to their idol. Royal bloodletting rituals were a part of Mayan life: they believed the soul resided in the blood, and thus their blood could appease the gods. In the New Testament, deliberately harming or mutilating oneself by cutting is associated with demonic possession; see Mark 5:2-5. Thus, a Christian should ask, is the cutting to obtain a healthful result, or is it in service to an idol?

The second step, taking inflammatory stuff from the body of a sick person, and injecting it into your own, is absent from the Bible. Among the laws given to Moses are those which relate to skin diseases (leprosy). For outbreaks in skin, God commands several seven-day quarantines, to observe the progress of the disease. If the disease clears, then a person is pronounced clean. If the disease progresses, a complete quarantine of the person outside the camp is maintained until the disease clears. Leviticus 13. A person with a disease of the skin is considered unclean! If God pronounced certain skin outbreaks to be unclean, and forbade physical contact with them, on what ground should a Christian -- who is not to touch unclean things -- not only directly handle such pustules or scabs, but introduce them into his own blood? That is exactly what variolation did.

Edward Jenner, in 1796, began the practice of vaccination, which takes disease material from cows or calves (Latin vacca) instead of humans. Vaccination displaced variolation, and in the 20th century, cultivating disease on growth media in the lab replaced cows, and vaccination expanded to include many diseases other than smallpox. But it still operates the same way: matter which comes from a disease process is conveyed into the tissue and blood by means of a jab — a tiny cut made by a needle — allowing disease-containing liquid and other drugs into the blood.

Sorcery is pharmaceutical

Throughout the Bible, God's people are warned to avoid all sorcery or witchcraft. But what is sorcery? The root Greek word translated as "sorcery" in Revelation is pharmakeia, and it involves the use of medicine, drugs or spells. From this root comes the word "pharmaceutical." A related Greek word, pharmakos, a sorcerer, describes one who uses drugs and religious incantations to drug (or spell) people into living by his or her illusions (in which the recipient of the drugs/spells participates.)

A sorcerer uses religious "knowledge" which comes from false gods to perform deceptive miracles. In Exodus 8, Aaron, by God's power, threw down his staff and it became a serpent, as a true miracle sign to Pharaoh that God demanded the people of Israel be set free. In response, Pharaoh's sorcerers performed a similar "miracle" by their own arts (Aaron's serpent ate up their serpents, however, demonstrating God's power). Because the sorcerers of his own religion could perform such a "miracle," however, Pharaoh refused to listen to God.

What is the source of the knowledge, a.k.a. science, upon which sorceries depend, if it is not God? God had VARIOLATION TO VACCINATION: "VACCINATION against SMALL POX or Mercenary & Merciless spreaders of Death & Devastation driven out of SOCIETY!" is the title of Isaac Cruikshank's 1808 satirical cartoon. The cartoon depicts practitioners of variolation against smallpox with Jenner's new vaccination, which employed the exact same methods, but with disease material from cows rather than other humans. The variolators, who make money by performing "inoculations": 1st: "Curse on these Vaccinators. We shall all be starved, why Brother I have matter enough here to kill 50." 2nd: And those would communicate it to 500 more." 3rd: "Aye. Aye. I always order them to be constantly out in the air, in order to spread the contagion." The vaccinators, who also make money by performing "inoculations": 1st (Jenner): "Oh, Brothers, Brothers, suffer the love of Gain to be overcome by compassion for your fellow-creatures. And do not delight to plunge whole Families in the deepest distress by the untimely loss of their nearest and Dearest relatives." 2nd: "Surely the Disorder of the Cow is preferable to that of the Ass [i.e., the variolator]." The cupid crowns Edward Jenner "The preserver of the Human Race," while the variolators' razors are "The curse of human kind" but the vaccinator's razor is labeled "The Milk of human kindness."

warned Adam and Eve if they ate of the “tree of knowledge of good and evil,” both “shalt surely die.” Genesis 2:16-17. In Genesis 3, the great serpent Satan tempted Eve to eat of that tree of knowledge by claiming “ye shalt not surely die.” Being deceived, Eve ate the fruit, Adam joined her, and sin and death entered the world. Throughout history, we can see this Satanic deception repeated: if man will only trust in Science (“the state of knowing, knowledge”), then man will not surely die. Man has always sought to defeat death by means other than that provided by God himself: the sacrificial atonement made by Jesus Christ on the cross, and His resurrection. Since there is only one God, all attempts to defeat death by trusting in something other than God’s wisdom (and in something God forbids!) will fail.

Albert Mohler, the president of The Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, lauds the speed in which the COVID-19 jabs were developed, and implies they are modern miracles, like man’s landing on the moon.³ Mohler encourages Christians to think of the jab as simple medical interventionism, to which no Christians have ever been opposed.

Certainly, Christians are not opposed to healing diseases and disorders of the body (unless through sorcery). But vaccination is not undertaken to heal the body of an existing malady; rather, the claim of vaccination is that by inducing disease through injecting certain proteins, a person will never face contracting the disease and dying from it. Vaccination is a modified version of the time-worn deception “thou shalt not surely die” – i.e., at least not from a disease one can be made “immune” from. Further, vaccination is a drug often grown on animal blood products and incorporating chemicals known to be injurious to health (e.g., mercury, aluminum).

In the case of the Pfizer and Moderna COVID-19 jabs, the invention of mRNA technology to hijack the body’s processes to produce disease proteins will deliver the ‘miracle’ of causing the body to make antibodies and prevent death from the virus. This has every appearance of sorcery. First, it is dependent, not on wisdom from God, but on the imagination of man. Second, it involves the deception of Satan that man can prevent himself from death through his own knowledge. Third, it involves cutting into the blood to deliver drugs in service of this knowledge (the idol called “Science”). Fourth, the COVID-19 jabs, including Johnson & Johnson and AstraZeneca, are either lab-grown using fetal cell lines derived from purposefully aborted fetuses, or are tested in the lab using such cell lines. In other words, they are derived from the modern worship of Moloch, the idol who demanded the sacrifice of infants. (See, e.g., II Kings 17:7; 23:10; Jeremiah 7:30-31; 19: 3-

Who can bring a clean thing out of an unclean? Not one. — Job 14:4.

“Who can bring a clean thing out of an unclean? Not one.” Job 14:4.

Life is in the blood

God has declared that “the life of the flesh is in the blood.” Deuteronomy 12:23, Leviticus 17:11. Further, scripture teaches that the Christian’s body is the “temple of the Holy Spirit.” Should a Christian pollute that temple with things offered to the idol of Science, or with unclean things? In taking a COVID-19 drug into his body, a Christian cuts into his body in the worship of Science, polluting his blood with unclean diseases, with the products of the blood of animals, and with the assistance of infant sacrifices to the modern version of Moloch. “And what agreement hath the temple of God with idols? For ye are the temple of the living God ... Wherefore, come out from among them, and be ye separate, saith the Lord, and touch not the unclean thing, and I will receive you.” II Corinthians 6:16-17.

What are the fruits?

Finally, as discussed in last month’s Liberty Tree, the COVID-19 jabs are increasingly being shown to actually deliver disorder, disease and death. In Matthew 7:17-18 and 20, Jesus said: “[E]very good tree bringeth forth good fruit; but a corrupt tree bringeth forth evil fruit. A good tree cannot bring forth evil fruit, neither can a corrupt tree bring forth good fruit. ... Wherefore, by their fruits ye shall know them.”

A discerning Christian, then, should at minimum be able to judge by the bad fruit of the COVID-19 jab to discern that the tree itself is evil. The promise that thou “shalt not surely die” by taking the jab is now showing itself to be another iteration of the great lie. Satan has always been a murderer: people are dying, not from COVID, but from the jab.

A Christian must consider: does taking the jab glorify God? Does taking the jab fulfill the duty to “fear God, and keep his commandments?” Ecclesiastes 12:13-14. It is plain that Christians can neither glorify nor obey God by embracing COVID-19 ‘vaccination.’

MORE BAD FRUIT

The latest data from VAERS shows that the COVID-19 jabs have likely caused nearly three times more blood clots and strokes — disorders related to blood and its regulation in the body — than all influenza type vaccines in the last thirty years. These jabs seriously poison the blood!
